

Some history on Tequila...

The ancient method of harvesting, cooking and distilling agave can be traced back hundreds of years. To this day, a Jimador harvests mature agave plants from the Mexican state of Jalisco, steams them in pressure cookers, and extracts the liquid using a giant stone called a tehona; the aging process is where Reposados and Anejos come into play. It is in this process that we find the imagination and passion each producer pours into every bottle. From the Blue Webber in Tequila to the Espadin in Oaxaca, these plants have a story to tell of the rich distilling heritage that is alive and well in Mexico. We hope you join us in discovering the incredible stories that our agave spirits have to tell.

“If you want to make some memories, add some tequila.”
